Israelis answer terrorist attack with bombs

TEL-AVIV, Israel (AP) — A 23-year-old Israeli housewife died today of wounds received in an Arab guerrilla attack that also took the lives of her husband and brother and wounded her seven-month-old son and her father.

Before she died, the petite brunette told her doctors that her infant son survived only "because I persuaded the terrorists not to shoot him." The baby was wounded by grenade fragments.

Israeli troops killed the four Arab guerrillas who seized the family's farmhouse early Sunday in the village of Kfar Yuval, near the Lebanese borders.

The Israeli military command retaliated with air strikes against the village of Kfar Chuba, "a base for terrorist infiltrators" in southern Lebanon, and Israeli and Arab forces duelled across the frontier with rockets and artillery until dawn today.

The Lebanese Defense Ministry said Israeli air strikes and artillery shelling killed one woman and wounded three other persons. Wafa, the Palestinian news agency, said two successive Israeli air raids "covered the entire Arkoub area" of southern Lebanon, an area with a large population of Palestinian guerrillas. It claimed the guerrillas shot down one Israeli Phantom.

The Israeli command said guerrillas in Lebanon fired Katyusha rockets in a rare daylight attack on the Mediterranean resort area near Nahariya, cutting two Israelis with shrapnel. It said the shelling continued today, and the target was the border hamlet of Metulla, three miles from Kfar Yuval. The command reported no casualties and said Israeli artillery returned the fire.

A spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization said it sponsored the raid on Kfar Yuval "because it is our right to fight for our rights." He added that such raids had the support of "the whole world ... because the U.N. General Assembly has approved the right of the Palestinians to pursue their struggle with all means to regain their usurped rights."

The Israelis said the attack was made by four guerrillas who slipped across the Lebanese frontier. They were spotted by armed civilians in Kfar Yuval as they climbed over a fence to get into the village of immigrants from India. The villagers opened fire, and the terrorists fired rifles and rocket grenades in all directions as they seized the house of Yaacov Mordechai.

Mordechai's wife, her father and a brother barricaded themselves in one room with the woman's seven-month-old son, but another brother died trying to block the terrorists as they blasted through the door.

Mordechai, an intercity bus driver, heard of the attack on the radio and rushed back to the village as Israeli troops were organizing the rescue operation.

A combat veteran and a reservist, the bus driver joined the assault force and was killed in a hail of bullets and exploding hand grenades. His wife, baby and father-in-law were wounded along with three other Israelis, and all four terrorists were killed.

The Israeli armed forces radio said one of the terrorists was a Palestinian, and the others were an Iraqi, a Moroccan and a Turk. It said they belonged to the Arab Liberation Front, which is affiliated with the PLO.

The Israeli Foreign Ministry said the terrorist assault was intended to disrupt "diplomatic efforts ... to revive the political momentum" toward peace. The statement also condemned the governments that voted at the U.N. General Assembly last November to recognize the PLO, saying this encouraged "murder and violence."

The latest diplomatic effort toward peace continued in New York with another meeting Sunday between Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Campaign reforms snuffed out by time

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Legislature ended 5 and 1-2 months of work Sunday night, approving a lobbyist regulation bill, tax relief for the elderly and increased junior college aid, but failing to act on measures revising the Campaign Practices Act.

Also falling by the wayside as the clock reached the midnight deadline were bills taking down more billboards to comply with federal law and an extension of the one-half cent sales tax for support of mass transportation in St. Louis and Kansas City.

Both the billboard and bus bills were in the hands of the Senate with 15 minutes remaining, but a dispute erupted on the floor for recognition and when the voices subsided, neither bill had been approved.

Failure to pass the billboard measure jeopardizes $12 million in federal highway funds for Missouri. The death of the transit tax could endanger bus transportation in St. Louis and Kansas City.

The lobbyist regulation bill, the last measure to be approved in the upper chamber before adjournment, would expand the reporting requirements of those representing special interests and adds a full-time attorney to the Cole

County prosecutor's office to police the lobbying measure.

Although the bill contains some loopholes, House sponsor James Baker said, "This is a reasonable step in the right direction."

Senior citizens would be given increased tax breaks under the circuit breaker legislation approved Sunday. At a cost to the state of nearly $4 million, the bill would allow the elderly to increase the amount of tax deduction on rent.

Revision of the campaign spending law ended in the House when Bellefontaine Neighbors Democrat Walter Meyer said, "The people of the state have spoken. We should vote against every change to this bill until it works for the next two years."

The campaign law, overwhelmingly approved during a statewide referendum last year, has been branded as unwelcome because of its income disclosure requirements.

In an effort to help candidates for local offices, a change in the law was sought to exempt those spending less than $500 on their campaigns from reporting their income. But Meyer's proposal was adopted, and the House tabled any effort to change the law.

Aid bill good news to SFCC

State Fair Community College President Fred Davis told The Democrat-Capital Monday that he is "delighted with the passage" of a bill designating additional financial help for community colleges.

The measure, originated in the Senate as a substitute for a House bill, passed both houses of the legislature with no dissenting votes during the final hours of the regular session Sunday. The Senate approved the proposal 28-0. It passed in the House 130-0.

Davis said the aid will go directly to boost faculty salaries and instructional programs. He said the Board of Trustees has already given tentative approval to a 7 per cent pay hike for teachers, contingent on Gov. Christopher Bond signing the bill. A bill with similar intent was vetoed by Bond last year.

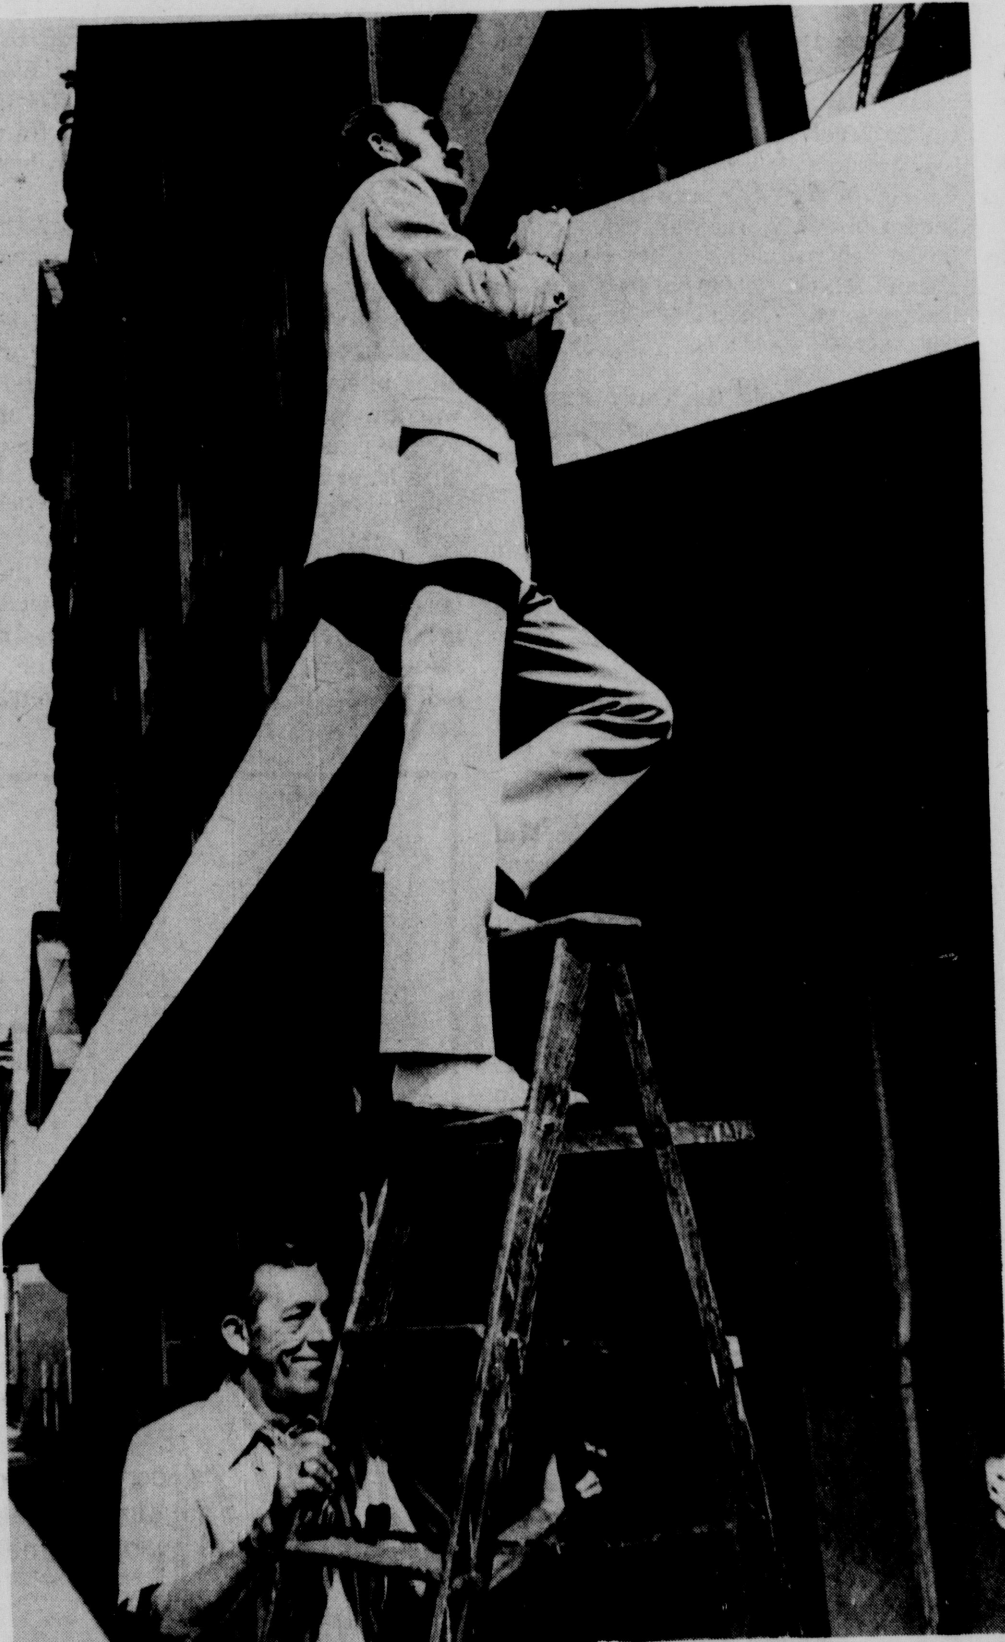

The SFCC executive sees no obstacles to the measure becoming law. "I'm sure that with no dissenting votes in either house, he (Bond) would not veto it," Davis said. He added that representatives of the state's community colleges have discussed the bill with Bond and he has indicated his support.

The measure would provide $20 per student for each credit hour taken for the first year and 50 per cent of the average cost of providing that hour in every year after. Davis estimates the SFCC district could receive up to $82,000 in the first year the bill is law.

Davis said both Sen. John Ryan and Rep. James Mathewson "have worked very hard to see that the bill came up for a vote when it looked like it might be by-passed due to time."

Safe for Sedalia

Fourth Ward Councilman David Curry, on ladder, and City Inspector Woodrow Garrison inspected the steel awning on the Trust Building Monday morning as the final step in declaring the building safe. The 87-year-old downtown building at Fourth and Ohio was found to be a danger in March when large pieces of stone flaked off and fell to the street and sidewalk below. Garrison said that he has inspected the work on the building as it progressed and will notify its owner, Linville Eberting, that it is no longer in violation of the dangerous building ordinance. Reports of vehicles flooded out and streets overflowing with water poured into police headquarters Monday as 2 inches of rain fell on Sedalia in about an hour. The underpass on Broadway near Smith-Cotton High School was closed by the high water, but that didn't stop this group of boys from splashing through it. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

CATV rate up tonight

The City Council is expected tonight to act on a new ordinance to govern cablevision operations in the city.

The most controversial section of the proposed ordinance is the monthly rate increase, which at the last council meeting June 2, was tentatively set at 25 cents, from $5.90 to $6.15 per month. Cablevision manager Lynn Harrison, who had requested a $1 per month rate hike to $6.90, indicated the benefit of a 25-cent monthly increase would be negligible.

Also under the proposed ordinance, the city would give Cablevision a 15-year permit, formerly referred to as a franchise. Cablevision's annual obligation payment would be 3 per cent of its annual yearly revenue, instead of the present 10 per cent.

Following the June 2 council meeting, Mayor Jerry Jones said he considered the proposed $6.15 rate figure too low and hoped the council would reconsider its decision by tonight's meeting.

A closed-door-meeting of the council, reportedly called to discuss legal aspects of the Cablevision ordinance, was held Thursday night in the Municipal Building.

The council is also expected to hear a request by Joe Wasson, owner of Pettis County Ambulance Co. who is seeking city subsidy. Wasson has said Monday he may be forced to move his business outside the city limits and reduce his fleet of ambulances from three to one if he does not get the aid.

In other business, the council is expected to hear a recommendation from the Planning and Zoning Commission that work begin on a new comprehensive plan for the city. The plan would be developed by the Show-Me Regional Planning Commission.

Rockefeller report describes 'legal' domestic intelligence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the Rockefeller Commission's report outlined a number of "plainly unlawful" domestic activities by the CIA, it also described a variety of circumstances in which domestic spying would be legal and proper.

For instance, the 300-page report released last week stated that the CIA's 20-year program of mail surveillance violated laws which forbid the opening of letters.

However, the commission also stated that "mail cover operations (examining and copying of envelopes only) are legal when carried out in compliance with postal regulations on a limited and selective basis involving matters of national security." The eight-member panel headed by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller also suggested domestic mail openings might be permitted in time of war.

The commission's views lack the force of law but instead are findings of fact and recommendations about what the CIA should do in the future.

The commission described other circumstances which, in the commission's view, would allow the CIA to utilize such spy techniques as infiltration and surveillance in the United States.

Thus, while the report criticized the agency for infiltrating domestic dissident organizations to determine if the groups were planning any activities against CIA installations, it did not issue a blanket condemnation of such activity.

Instead, it said "the agency should not infiltrate a dissident group for security purposes unless there is a clear danger to agency installations, operations or personnel, and investigative coverage of the threat by the FBI and local law enforcement authorities is inadequate."

The report also leaves the agency broad powers to utilize spy techniques against "persons presently or formerly affiliated with the agency, directly or indirectly."

When investigating such persons for possible violation of agency security rules, "the use of physical surveillance is not unlawful unless it reaches the point of harassment," while electronic eavesdropping is permissible if the agency has "the written approval of the attorney general on the basis of a finding that the national security is involved," the report stated.

The commission suggested that the CIA should not undertake surveillance of persons connected with the agency without first obtaining written approval from the CIA director. Electronic eavesdropping would be better left to the FBI, the commission said.

According to the report, the surveillance of newsmen suspected of receiving classified information is improper under any circumstances, as are domestic break-ins, which the commission found 12 instances of.

Another activity which the commission could find no justification for under any circumstances was the administering of LSD to unsuspecting persons, a program which the agency terminated in 1963.

SLA fugitives will continue in their war

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Symbionese Liberation Army fugitive William Harris has told a friend that he, his wife Emily and Patricia Hearst are not "mad revolutionaries" but intend to fight on for the rest of their lives.

A letter Harris sent to an undisclosed friend last October was excerpted in Sunday's editions of the Los Angeles Times. The friend has shown the letter, postmarked from Boston, only to the Times because he fears it might contain clues that could help authorities capture the Harris and Miss Hearst, the newspaper said.

The letter said the fugitives were determined to continue their war against "imperialist" America and were in rigorous guerrilla training, restricting even their sexual activities.

"I intend to be free," Harris wrote in the four-page typed letter. "I'll not be free until all exploited and oppressed people are free."

The fugitives were in good spirits and had recovered from the deaths of their SLA comrades, Harris said. Six SLA members were killed in a shootout with Los Angeles police in May 1974.

Harris told his friend, "Don't let your concern for my life and safety make you weak. Pull for us, support us because in the end we are going to win!"

Officials probe wall for image

HOLMAN, N.M. (AP) — Roman Catholic Church officials say they are investigating an image, said to resemble Jesus Christ, that appears nightly on the wall of an old church school building here.

Thousands of persons have journeyed to this tiny community, nestled in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains of north central New Mexico, to view the image.

It was first reported about three weeks ago. Some who have seen it call it a miracle. Others say the image is formed by shadows and discolored plaster.

"It's not apparent at this time there is any supernatural cause," said the Rev. Donald Starkey of Albuquerque, vice chancellor of the Archdiocese of Santa Fe.

"But every effort is being made to understand exactly what is involved," Father Starkey said.

Nobody seems sure who saw the image first. But it was called to the attention of the Rev. Leonard Bayer, whose mission includes the church where the image appears, the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church.

"It's not impossible that it is a sign from God. God's ways are not our ways, and he can use different ways to bring people to himself."

"If it proves authentic, so much the better. If it proves false, some good has come out of it," said Father Bayer, who lives in nearby Mora and offers Mass at Holman at 8 a.m. on Sundays.

He said the image has caused people to think about God, and he said people treat each other differently in the presence of the image.

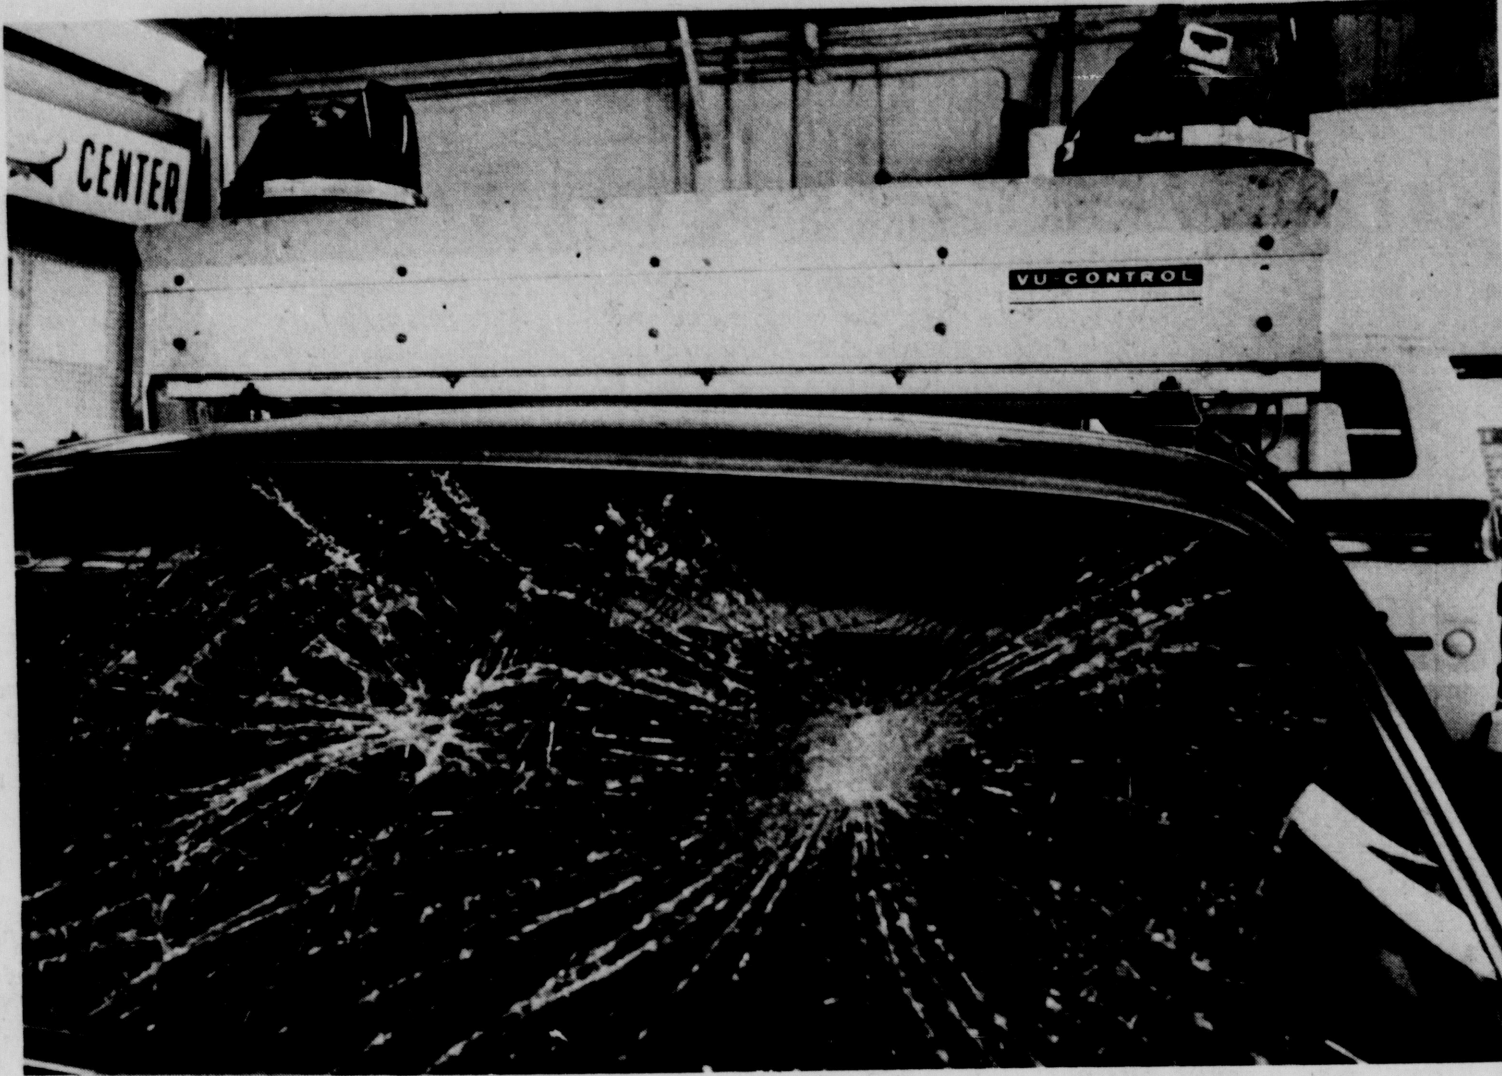

"It's really quite beautiful," he said. "Everything is so orderly. People whisper. Some bring candles or flowers. First they pray, then they look at the image. It's okay. It's very orderly."

A reporter visited the church last week. He found New Mexico 3, the two-lane road which bisects the village, choked with automobiles for a mile around the church.

A crowd, estimated at several thousand, continued to swell as dusk grew despite a light rain.

Three elderly ladies knelt in the dirt, praying alternately in Spanish and English.

Illuminated by a security light, the image itself was clearly visible. It appeared to be formed by a combination of the natural discoloration of the plastered wall, and shadows cast by the uneven surface of the wall.

Vandals' handiwork

This damage to Sedalia police car No. 5 was done by vandals early Monday morning while the officers were on a break at Sambo's Restaurant, 2001 South Limit. Witnesses reported that two men in their 20's kicked the windshield and both red lights atop the car. The witnesses came into the restaurant to tell the officers, but the men had left when the police got to the car. It will cost $332 to have the car repaired. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Solid waste disposal measure awaits governor's signature

A bill revising the state's solid waste law and exempting most of outstate Missouri from public garbage service, including Pettis County, is currently awaiting the signature of Gov. Christopher Bond.

Senate bill No. 98 basically amends the current solid waste law to no longer require city or county governments to set up publicly-operated trash hauling services.

The law made it illegal to dump trash in any area other than a licensed sanitary landfill after June 30, 1973. By June 30, 1974, all counties and cities were required to adopt a plan for solid waste disposal. Pettis County was among these that did not.

Of the 975 cities in the state, only about 25 per cent of them had complied with the law; and of 114 counties, less than 10 per cent have complied, according to Sen. John Ryan of Sedalia.

Pettis County did not submit a plan, according to Paul White, eastern district judge of the county court, at the advice of Frank Schwarzer, executive director of the Show-Me Regional Planning Commission. The county needed additional information to complete the plan, and the government never sent it, he said.

"The present law requires that every county court provide a method for the collection of garbage and refuse throughout the county, and that they file a plan for this system with the solid waste bureau. There is simply no way the rural counties can do this short of going bankrupt," said Ryan. "The only alternative is to levy more county taxes and I do not feel that the rural people can stand a greater tax burden," he added.

Ryan is supporting the revised bill, introduced by Sen. Robert Young (D-St. Louis County.)

The bill would remove from trash collection regulations all second-, third- and fourth-class counties and all cities 500 or less in population.

Under the bill, a local government may contract with public utilities to collect service charges or user fees for trash collection.

In its May newsletter, the Missouri Association of Counties said the bill meant "no city or county shall be required to operate or contract for solid waste collection or disposal or to collect service charges unless the Department of Natural Resources finds after a public hearing and notice that private services are not reasonably available and privately owned and operated business in endangering public health."

The burden of proof is on the Department of Natural Resources to show that whatever system a city or county chooses does not meet this test, Ryan said.

If the amended bill is signed into law, it requires that all counties and cities submit a plan to the Department of Natural Resources on or before Jan. 1.

If the service adopted by a county or city is public, it must be paid for out of a tax levy, under the proposed bill.

British earl sought for murder

LONDON (AP) — Lady Veronica Lucan, wife of the missing British earl who is sought in the murder of the family nurse, said for the first time today he had tried to strangle her on the night of the murder.

She told an inquest at London's Westminster Coroner's Court: "He thrust two gloved fingers down my throat and we started to fight. During the course of it he attempted to strangle me from in front."

The inquest was hearing evidence on the death of the Lucan's family nurse, Sandra Rivett, 29, who was beaten to death in the Belgravia home of the Countess of Lucan last Nov. 7. Lady Lucan, 37, was also badly injured by the nurse's assailant that day.

Lady Lucan told the Daily Express, "I shall simply tell the court what happened, and if asked I shall reveal the name of the man who attacked me — the man who sat on the stairs afterwards, cried on my shoulder and told me he had killed Sandra."

The countess said she waited until the man calmed down and then ran to a nearby pub for help, streaming blood and crying "murder." Miss Rivett's bludgeoned body later was found wrapped in a canvas sack in the basement of the three-story house.

Some detectives have theorized that the murderer wanted to kill the countess and got the governess by mistake.

The 40-year-old earl vanished a few hours after the killing. Scotland Yard, after interviewing the countess, issued a warrant for his arrest for murder and for the attack on his wife. He has never been traced despite reports that he was seen in France, Australia, South Africa and Latin America.

Most Scotland Yard men say they believe Lord Lucan committed suicide in some remote part of Britain. But some senior investigators think he is still alive and being hidden by friends, here or overseas.

Court to review natural gas ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a decision which the Federal Power Commission said would seriously hamper efforts to alleviate the natural gas shortage.

The court will consider a ruling of the U.S. court of appeals in Washington that the commission may not give natural-gas producers built-in authority to shut off the gas supply of interstate pipelines when their contracts expire.

The procedure was challenged by 21 members of Congress who argued it was a backdoor approach to the administration's goal of deregulation of natural gas supplies at the wellhead, which Congress has refused to approve.

Loss estimate up

In other police news, 240 quarters were reported stolen from Lower's Moving and Storage scales, 1439 Thompson Blvd., sometime Friday night.

A tape player, valued at $90, was stolen from a car belonging to Steven Bartlett, 200 East Walnut, between 10 and 11:30 p.m. Friday while parked on the State Fairgrounds.

Eagleton says army should use money on men

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Army should spend more money developing weapons for infantrymen and less on sophisticated arms gadgetry, U.S. Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton said in a speech commemorating the Army's 200th anniversary.

In an address Saturday at the Gateway Arch, the Missouri Democrat noted that while more than 80 per cent of those killed in the nation's last three wars were infantrymen, the Army spends less than one per cent of its research funds on weapons for infantrymen.

"According to other statistics, our infatuation with bigger, more glamorous weapons has diminished our capability to fight a ground war," he said.

He deplored "generals and civilian bureaucrats (who) tend to measure their own power and prestige in terms of the complexity, size and expense of the weapons systems they have at their command."

It is claimed the first settlement of white pioneers in Nevada was a Mormon trading post now called Genoa.

Muslims opening some closed doors

CHICAGO (AP) — The Black Muslims have assets of at least $46 million, the new leader of the separatist sect said as he broke almost a half-century of secrecy about the group's financial worth.

Both the money and the membership of the Nation of Islam, as the Black Muslims are formally known, have been closely guarded secrets since Elijah Muhammad founded the religious sect during the Depression. The membership is still unknown.

Elijah Muhammad died last Feb. 26. His son and successor, Wallace Muhammad, made his first public appearance as the Nation of Islam's supreme minister on Sunday.

In a move aimed at dissolving any doubts about the transition of power from father to son, another powerful Black Muslim leader, Abdul Aleem Farakin of New York City, told the rally of 20,000 persons:

"We (the Nation of Islam) are continuing the work of the Honorable Elijah Muhammad and are evolving into what he predicted we would."

Wallace Muhammad also told the rally that there was no power struggle within the sect.

Muhammad said the Nation of Islam had reached the stability necessary to make some of its assets known.

He said the group's wealth was a "dream which has become reality."

But he said he wouldn't disclose all of the assets because "there are still some things that you have to keep secret."

He said one success is a multimillion dollar seafood import agreement the Nation of Islam has with several foreign countries. Since the agreement was negotiated 16 months ago, the Nation of Islam has spent about $6.3 million for 26 million pounds of fish and 541,000 cans of sardines which have returned more than $22 million in retail sales, Muhammad said.

Of that $22 million, $7 million was forwarded to the sect's national headquarters in Chicago and the remaining $15 million was distributed among the group's 176 temples throughout the country, he said.

Salem Poor, a 28-year old freeman and church member, was cited for bravery and valor on June 17, 1775, by 14 officers who had been on the field of the Battle of Bunker Hill that day. A petition was submitted to the General Court suggesting that Congress bestow an award on this brave black man, but no action was taken, notes The World Almanac.

'Reformers' have failed to deliver

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — The longer I work in Washington the more cynical I become about congressional reformers.

Cromley

Last November, Americans across the nation threw out a sizeable group of incumbent Congressmen. In their place we voted into office men who advertised themselves as idealists. They promised to change Congress, get rid of inept and shady committee chairmen, clean up elections, reform the budget, end the recession and provide relief for those caught in the unemployment squeeze. They vowed to get rid of those advantages which allow incumbent congressmen to perpetuate themselves in Washington.

Now that they're seated, these self-styled honest congressmen have taken on the worst habits of the men they replaced. And added a few new flourishes.

The newcomers, on average, have done so badly in fact that many undoubtedly would be ousted in November, 1976, except for the fact that new provisions of the law, added to other privileges they pushed through, will make it difficult indeed to vote an incumbent out. Even in the past, a challenger has had an exceedingly difficult row to hoe because of the special privileges congressmen have — patronage, publicity, free trips home, franking of mail, greater access to money from individuals and from lobbies — whether labor, industrial, farmer, or "public interest" groups.

The situation, as noted above, is now worse.

The clean election law, by an interesting quirk or two, limits challengers more severely than incumbents.

The reformers have increased that disparity further by voting themselves more trips home — 32 a year instead of 21 — money for newsletters and more funds for personal staffs. None of this increased funding, a most valuable asset in campaigning for re-election, is paralleled by increases in spending allowed challengers.

If you restrict the spending of a challenger and increase the indirect spending allowed an incumbent, you can forget talk of a fair election.

This is not all.

When these men came to office, they vowed reform.

The newcomers had lists of committee chairmen they considered dangerous. Whether these lists were correct, figments of the imagination or the result of ideological differences is beside the point. The idealists threw out only three chairmen of those they'd marked for extinction. What happened, so far as I can ascertain, is that some target chairmen were able to use patronage and other pressures so effectively they took control of enough reformer votes to stay in power.

If there was one thing the young Turks had complained about, it was congressional secrecy. They argued at length for open decisions openly arrived at. Once in office, they voted against open sessions in the one political party they clearly had the power to dominate.

The reformists have been unable to bring their power to bear on some of the most serious problems of the day. No energy conservation bill has been voted. The problem of falling American productivity has not been attacked. There's been little practical thought on how to ease the recession, increase employment or dampen excessive inflation which many now fear will come next year or in 1977 — only shaky stabs so cumbersome and ineffective they were certain to be vetoed.

How much can Israel give up?

TEL AVIV — An Israeli editor reflected solemnly on his country's dilemma: "We can win a hundred wars militarily, but we can never win peace militarily."

Rowan

Gur believes that Egypt's President Anwar Sadat has launched a political offensive. Therefore, he told me, Israelis "have to be as courageous in politics as we are in war ... It is better to take risks in politics than in war."

Although Gur's desire for diplomatic concessions has led some Israelis to describe him as "our first dovish chief of staff," this tall, talkative general is clearly nobody's patsy. For example, he dismisses as silly the suggestions by journalists, traveling U.S. congressmen and others that some Arab leaders now have accepted the idea of Israel's permanency.

"People don't change their minds that way," Gur insists. "All that matters (to the Arabs) is that Israel remains strong enough to deter aggression." He says he accepts the reality that if Israel cannot coexist with her neighbors in peace, she must figure out how to coexist in conflict.

Gen. Gur expresses confidence that Israel is strong enough to win any new war with the Arabs. Yet, he says, Egypt is strong enough to wage another 1973-type struggle, and his worry is that even if Egypt lost militarily, Sadat might win diplomatically.

Gur reveals a flexibility not widely associated with Israeli generals when you ask him what is most likely to provoke another Middle East war.

"If the Arabs grow stronger while Israel becomes weaker, the Arabs will attack Israel," he says, asserting that this is one reason why the U.S. ought to honor Israel's aid request.

War could also break out, Gur continues, "if the Arabs are frustrated in their main political objectives." And this Israeli general admits readily that the Arabs' current main objective is to get back territories seized by Israel in the 1967 and 1973 conflicts.

Gur says Israel would be wise to return those territories at a rapid enough pace to preclude Arab frustration — taking care, of course, to protect Israel's security every step of the way.

How much would Gen. Gur give back, and how soon? He says, "The process of giving back should be parallel to our feeling that they (the Arabs) respect our main objective, which is to live in peace and security."

Gen. Gur's idea of the road to peace, with the risks to Israel minimized, goes something like this: Israel would return some of the conquered territories soon. Then, for some period Israel would watch her Arab neighbors for signs of their increased willingness to live in peace. As this Arab behavior builds the confidence of Israelis, Israel would return more and more of the conquered territories.

What is Gur's bottom line? Would he ultimately have Israel pull back to boundaries that existed prior to the 1967 war? The general says it would be foolish to say at the outset where the pull-back might end. He says the whole process would become immediately unacceptable to most Arabs if Israel were to say at the outset: "We'll finally give back everything except ..."

As we shall see, however, this part of the world remains a powderkeg because a lot of powerful Israelis think Gur is out of his mind to want to give anything back to the Arabs.

Premature releases endanger the public

Two recent incidents in Kansas City focus attention on a problem that appears to be on the increase. Here is what happened:

Last week a 9-year-old girl was abducted by a 41-year-old man who, it turned out, was on furlough from the state mental hospital at Fulton. The man was charged with rape and crimes against nature.

It has since been revealed that the man has a history of such sexual crimes against juveniles. A Jackson County circuit judge ruled in April that the man could not be unconditionally released from the hospital.

Yet the furlough was granted by Dr. Donald B. Peterson, hospital superintendent, who has the authority to grant such leaves regardless of a judge's order. The Jackson County prosecutor termed Dr. Peterson's action "outrageous."

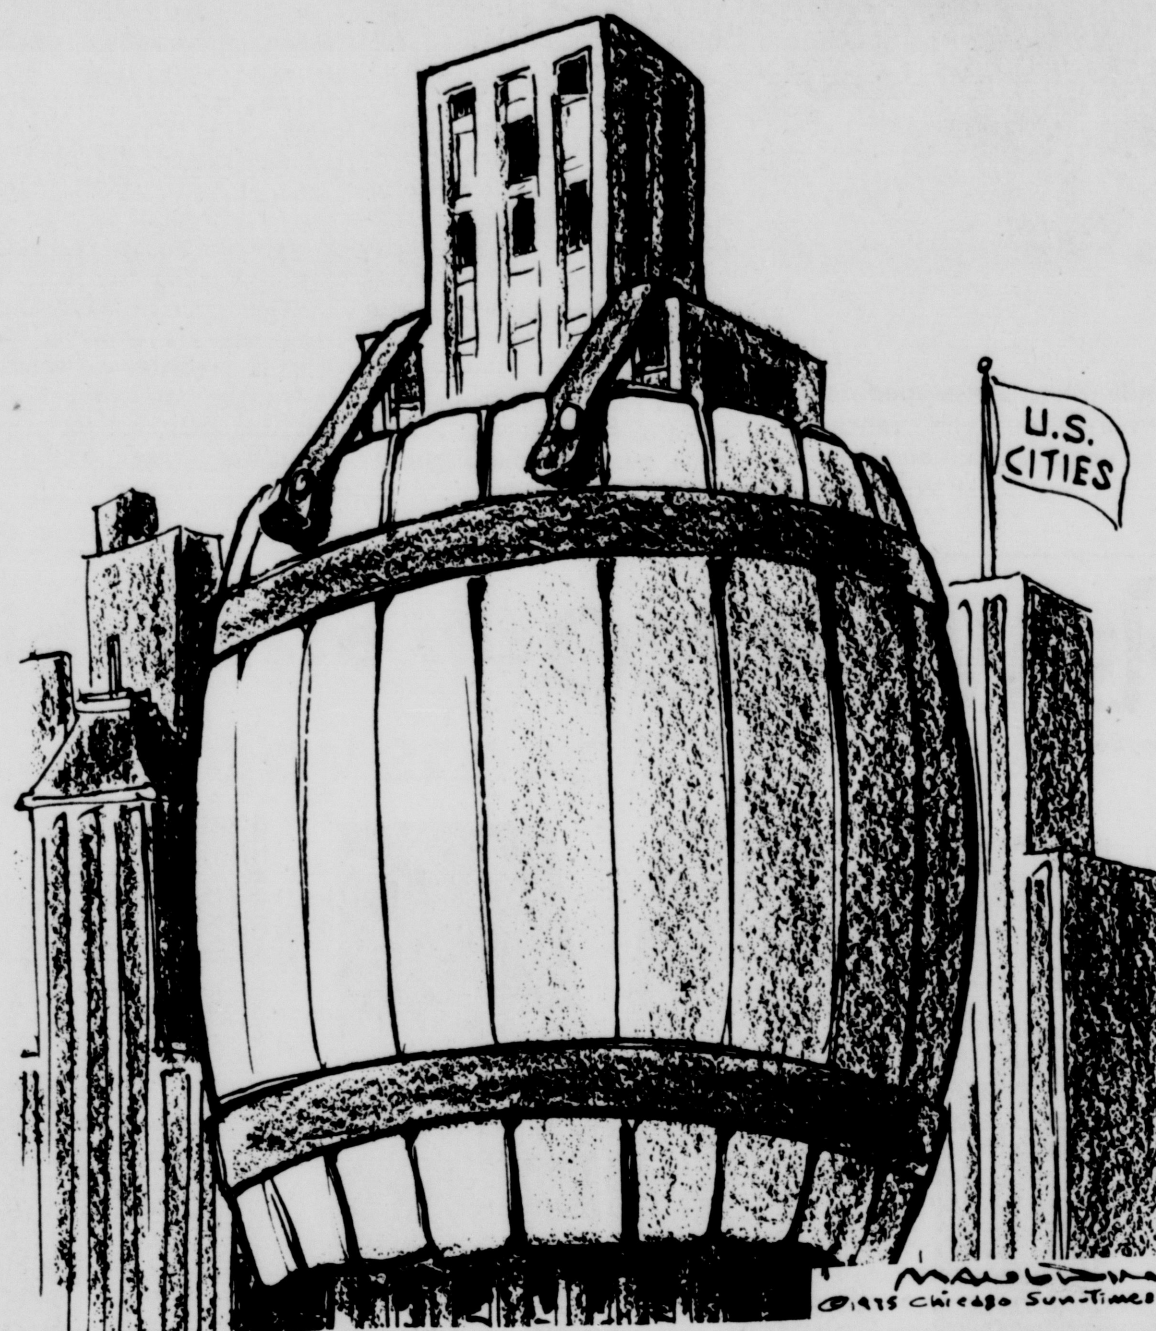

It was the second such incident in recent months. Earlier another mental patient at the hospital had been sent home on "convalescent leave," after which he committed at least 11 rapes. He is now serving two consecutive life sentences plus 50 years in the Missouri penitentiary for convictions of rape and crimes against nature.

Dr. Peterson's explanation for the latest episode was that his former patient had never been insane, thus it was a matter for the prosecutor to handle however he sees fit. This puts us back to square one, where the defendant will find an attorney to plead him not-guilty by reason of mental defect, he will go to Fulton, be furloughed, etc., etc.

The clear loser in this game of buck-passing is the public. It is they who are brutalized at the hands of mental misfits that some alleged expert certifies as being ready to return to society.

There have been far too many such incidents, some of them resulting in murder. The citizenry deserves better protection from those it looks to for this sort of thing.

Natural gas cuts: were they rigged?

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — A House subcommittee has uncovered evidence that precious natural gas was intentionally held off the market last winter, causing hardships to thousands on the East Coast.

The motive for withholding the gas, sources suspect, was to create public pressure for government deregulation of natural gas prices.

Hardest hit were small communities in Southern New Jersey, Virginia, and North Carolina, which are served by the Transco pipeline. Transco was forced to curtail its shipments because of shortages in the Gulf of Mexico.

A staggering 13 billion cubic feet of natural gas was held back from the market last winter. This threatened 19 firms in Southern New Jersey with shutdowns at a time when unemployment already had hit 14 per cent. In Danville, Va., 10,000 jobs in a community of 50,000 were jeopardized by the shortage. And in Tunis, N.C., a fertilizer plant was shut down by the energy squeeze.

Transco's fourth largest supplier, for example, closed a field about 50 miles off the Texas coast. This reservoir, under federal lease to Citgo and three other oil firms, was shut down for repairs from Aug. 30, 1974, until Jan. 20, 1975 — timed perfectly to interrupt the flow of natural gas to the North for the winter season.

The House Investigations Subcommittee, headed by Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., now has evidence that Citgo could have repaired the well during the summer of 1974. This not only would have avoided the winter shortage, but conditions would have been better to work on the well earlier.

The company discovered corrosion in the well's tubing in January, 1974. By April, the corporate brass decided the well would have to be shut down for a "workover." The repairs were planned for the early summer. But mysterious delays held up the work until the end of the summer.

Citgo officials claim they had trouble getting the necessary tubing and a rig to do the repairs. But industry sources say the subcommittee has evidence which disputes the Citgo claim.

Footnote: Two New Jersey congressmen, Bill Hughes and James Florio, asked the house to investigate. Hearings are scheduled this week. The Federal Power Commission is also investigating the gas curtailments.

DRUG CRISIS: An alarming 25 per cent of America's 190,000 GIs in Europe are so strung out on hootch, hashish and heroin that they can't perform their daily duties properly.

This is the grim conclusion of a House International Relations subcommittee study, now in the works, which claims 50,000 of our European-based servicemen are "in some way incapacitated by the abuse of drugs or alcohol."

Chairman Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., found drug abuse in the Air Force comparatively low. But addiction in the Army, he charged, was epidemic. By his figures, at least 12 per cent of the Army troops used hashish or marijuana, another 12 per cent drank too much alcohol and 2 per cent were on hard drugs, mainly heroin.

Wolff's study blamed the problem on general boredom and easy access to cheap drugs and booze. He also criticized the military brass for failing to help the GIs understand why they have to serve so far from home.

The most menacing new drug form, according to the unpublished study, is a potent marijuana derivative called "hashish oil." A droplet on a toothpick or cigarette or in a drink, once it touches the tongue, has an immediate effect.

Wolff learned that dope rings are smuggling the hashish oil from Pakistan and Lebanon into Europe by ingenious means. The smugglers, for example, have been known to soak a woman's dress with the oil and let it dry. Then a female confederate, wearing the dress, is sent through customs. Once she is safely inside the country, the dress is processed to remove the oil.

The illicit returns, apparently, are worth the trouble. For a quart of hashish oil has the potency of almost seven tons of marijuana plant.

Wolff found that most hard drugs are smuggled by boat and plane from Asia into European cities, particularly Amsterdam. The same elements are present in Europe, primarily Germany, for hard drug addiction as had existed in Vietnam during the GI drug craze, he reports.

Footnote: The Army hotly disputed Wolff's figures, saying Army rehabilitation statistics "do not support the claim." A spokesman said that at the end of March, there were only 7,540 in alcohol and drug programs, with many of these on the way to a cure.

HAPPY ENDING: A California stamp dealer, James Crum, called us a few months ago beseeching our help in getting his Vietnamese fiancée into the United States so they could be wed.

Immigration officials suggested that he meet his bride in the Philippines, go ahead with the wedding in Manila and then request a visa for his young bride.

The ecstatic bridegroom took this advice. He reports from Manila that he will now be able to bring his new wife into the United States after a honeymoon in the Pacific.

Letter to editor phony

On June 11 you published an anti-Semitic letter from "Isaac Weinberg" of Dallas, Tex. He introduced himself as having once been a teacher in Pettis County.

"Isaac Weinberg" has written similar letters to newspapers in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Indiana and Illinois. He has "lived" in all those places, it seems.

There is no "Isaac Weinberg" in Dallas, Tex. In each case, he has given a false address and even a false zip code number.

The writer of those letters is a bigot who trusts that editors will not check the accuracy of either his name or address. He wants to spread his prejudice into good communities like Sedalia and Columbia in hopes that he can turn one religion against another.

I leave it to your readers to decide who is unfaithful to the principles for which America stands — American Jews or the bigoted author of these hate-filled letters. But in any case, they should know that "Isaac Weinberg" never taught in Pettis County, since there is no Isaac Weinberg.

UNEMPLOYMENT CON

"You used to jump over WHAT?"

FOOD &amp; FIBER NEWS

University of Missouri Extension Centers
Henry - Johnson - Lafayette - Pettis

Wheat is worth at least as much as corn on a per pound basis. Wheat contains 7 per cent more pounds per bushel than a bushel of corn — 60 pounds vs. 56 pounds of corn. On a per bushel basis, wheat is worth 35 cents more per bushel ($2.75 vs. $3.12) or about 13 per cent more than corn.

Therefore, a minimum, conservative value comparison of wheat to corn is the same price per pound — say 5 cents. On a per bushel basis this would be $2.80 for corn and $3.00 for wheat.

Wheat has been substituted 100 per cent for corn by many producers in a swine ration with good results. However, a limit of 50 per cent of wheat in the grain mixture is often recommended to improve palatability and reduce chance of pigs going off feed. Hogs should be changed gradually to wheat rations. Wheat must be rolled or ground for hogs. A coarse grind, to keep fine material to a minimum, is best.

Johnsongrass control
Milton Mathew, Pettis County weed control officer, advises me that a new policy has been initiated in weed control. Weed control now authorizes him to spray ditches, wasteland on farms with written permission. Formerly this county program sprayed Johnsongrass along roadsides. Cropland will not be sprayed but any farmers who have Johnsongrass in fence rows, ditches or wasteland are advised to phone Milton Mathew at 826-0893 or 827-0591.

Summer fertilization
Nitrogen plays the biggest part in summer fertilization. A few generalizations might be made about nitrogen on vegetables. Leafy vegetables, such as lettuce, chard and cabbage, do best with high nitrogen levels throughout their growing period. Root crops, such as radish and beet, need slightly lower levels of nitrogen. If fertilized too much, they develop large tops and small roots.

Vine crops, tomatoes, beans and other fruiting vegetables respond to nitrogen, but the summer addition should not be made until fruits have set and started to develop. High levels of nitrogen too early promote much leaf growth and can delay or reduce fruit production.

Fertilizing plants during the growing season is known as side dressing. To fertilize a row of growing plants, add the needed amount of fertilizer in a relatively wide band or shallow trench at least 3 to 4 inches away from the row. Although more labor is involved, there is less chance of burn if half the amount is applied in a band on each side of the row. Fertilize widely spaced plants such as tomato, cucumber or squash by placing the fertilizer in a circular band around the plant.

Keep fertilizer off leaves when applying, and never use more than the recommended amount. If in doubt, use a little less. Too much fertilizer can burn roots. If allowed to remain on the foliage it can also cause damage. Water the garden after application to wash off the leaves as well as activate the fertilizer.

Tomatoes do not need additional fertilization until one or two weeks before fruit starts to ripen. The largest fruits then take on a light green or whitish appearance.

Cucumber and cantaloupe benefit from a side dressing if it is applied about a week after blossoming begins. Do not fertilize watermelons or sweet potatoes, however. Additional information on applying nitrogen side dressings is available in the Grounds for Gardening Guide No. 6950.

Member of House resigns

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A member of the Missouri House resigned shortly before the midnight adjournment Sunday while a member of the Senate maintained that he had not decided whether to complete his term or take a job with the state.

Fifth term House member James P. Mulvaney took the oath of office as a member of the Missouri Public Service Commission two minutes after the House adjourned the 1975 session. The oath was administered by Supreme Court Judge John Bardgett. Mulvaney had been confirmed to the post only minutes earlier by the Senate. "I appreciate your providing the Public Service Commission and the state of Missouri with this fine man," Gov. Christopher S. Bond told the House members shortly after Mulvaney took the oath of office.

He was then joined by his family on the speaker's rostrum, where he told the House he would do his best to represent the people of Missouri.

Mulvaney, 41, a former dairy route salesman, was named to the commission last month to fill the vacancy left through the resignation of William Clark.

Auto accidents claim lives of nine in Missouri

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Missouri traffic accidents took nine lives over the weekend.

A Fayette boy was killed Sunday evening when a flatbed truck driven by his stepfather overturned on Howard County Route H near Fayette. The highway patrol said William Thornton McKee, 13, was pinned beneath the vehicle. The truck and a car collided at the crest of a sharp hill.

A two-car crash before dawn Sunday killed Wayne Basler, 38, Festus, and Mark Vacaro, 21, Crystal City. Five other persons were critically injured in the accident on Highway 61.

Donald Daffron, 56, Poplar Bluff, was killed early Sunday when the car he was driving ran off Highway 53 in Dunklin County and struck a power pole.

A 20-year-old St. Louis County woman gave birth by caesarian section Saturday night moments after she was pronounced dead at City Hospital in St. Louis. Linda Boswell of suburban Crestwood was injured when a car driven by her husband struck a slow-moving vehicle from the rear on Interstate 44 in St. Louis. Police said her pregnancy had reached full term.

Killed earlier in the weekend: Wayman W. Pike, 56, Springfield; Harry Ayers, 76, Lamar; Larry Latham, 22, St. Peters, and A.D. Gordon, 50, Kansas City.

Butz to tour Latin America

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz plans to leave Tuesday for a nine-day visit to Venezuela and Brazil for talks aimed at bolstering U.S. farm exports to Latin America.

The dollar value of farm exports generally — important to U.S. foreign exchange — is expected to drop nearly 20 per cent in the coming fiscal year. Latin America, one of the biggest markets, is helping lead the decline.

During the current year to end June 30, farm exports are expected to total a record of about $22 billion, a slight increase from the previous high of $21.3 billion 1973-74.

But while the over-all value of exports rose slightly this fiscal year, those to Latin American countries have dropped to an estimated $2.3 billion, down nearly 6 per cent from 1973-74.

Department experts say Latin American purchases are expected to decline further in the coming year, perhaps to $1.8 billion for a drop of 22 per cent.

The main reason for the dollar decline projected for next fiscal year is that the USDA expects commodity prices to be down because of anticipated bumper harvests of wheat, corn and other crops.

Butz and other administration farm leaders are concerned that huge U.S. harvests might cause market prices to plummet even further and thus trigger a major farm issue as the 1976 election approaches.

For years, Butz has talked about farm exports being the key to economic success for farmers, and much of the administration's farm philosophy is built around a thriving export market. With foreign sales high, according to Butz, there is no real need for government subsidies and controls.

The Butz trip to South America will include conferences in Caracas with U.S. agricultural attaches stationed throughout Latin America. Those are employed by Butz' department and serve in U.S. embassies in respective countries.

The attaches will brief Butz on the Latin American situation and prospects and in turn will be urged to do everything they can to stimulate interest in more U.S. farm trade.

He plans to visit with top government officials while in Venezuela and will go on to Brazil for similar meetings in Brasilia, Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro.

DID YOU KNOW?

by PAT O'CONNOR

Now, the price paid for livestock at different markets is not necessarily a true indication of the relative net profit to the producers. This holds true for a comparison of net returns between animals marketed direct and those marketed through the terminal markets just the same as for any other alternative markets.

The producer should understand the buyer's bargaining points of shrinkage of purchased weight and cut back of off-grade animals. The producer should know how these bargaining points affect his net returns, and he should have a clear-cut understanding with the buyer on these points before the deal is closed.

A producer can probably get a fair share of the savings involved in the direct-sale transaction if he has the ability to accurately estimate the grade and yield of his animals and if he takes the time to determine the true market price of his animals.

We are interested in agriculture...

It's our future too!!

How you profit from...no profit.

There's not one penny profit made by the 326,000 members of Missouri's 41 electric cooperatives. Each member pays for every single kilowatt hour of electricity he uses.

Not only that, every Rural Electric Cooperative in the country pays every tax that an investor-owned utility pays, except a profit tax.

The reason it doesn't pay a profit tax is because it doesn't make a profit.

So how do you profit from no-profit?

Not so simple. The answers are little words with big meanings. Like sharing energy. Conservation of electric power. Increased efficiency in food production. Working together for a better life for ALL of us.

By VAUGHN HART

Centralia came up with three runs, two of which were unearned, in the top of the eighth and handed the Sedalia Merchants their first loss of the season in Liberty Park Stadium Sunday afternoon, 5-4.

Trailing 4-2, Centralia, which took over the lead in the Eastern Division with the win, cashed in on a single by Steve Hagan, a triple by Ron Remley, a sacrifice fly by Paul Martin and a costly error by Sedalia right fielder Roger Reid.

The loss for Sedalia was the first in six outings for the Merchants, who now lead the Western Division by only one game over Lexington. Lexington moved into second place with a forfeit victory over Tipton. Lexington was tied for second place with Marshall, but Marshall suffered a 12-6 setback at the hands of Columbia. Sunday's victory was the first of the season for Columbia.

In Sunday's other game, Booneville lost a 14-9, 10-inning affair to Huntsville.

Centralia's eighth inning got started with Jerry Cochran being issued a walk from eventual loser Bob Pledge.

Hagan slapped a routine single into right field, but the ball got past Reid allowing Cochran to come home. Remley tripped home Hagan, who wound up on second base on Reid's error and advanced to third on a wild pitch by Pledge.

A sacrifice fly to center field by Martin scored Remley, with what proved to be the winning run.

Sedalia got a runner to second base with one out in the eighth, but Dave Ezell, who was credited with the victory in relief of starter Stan Elliott,

NEW YORK (AP) — Pele's United States professional soccer debut was a typical performance for Brazil's Black Pearl, the man who has averaged nearly a goal a game in his 1,254 career games.

But there was far more significance in the reception the sport received — and probably will continue to receive — now that the 34-year-old superstar is a marketable entity in the United States.

Quite simply, a North American Soccer League game wouldn't have drawn national network television coverage in the United States, much less live telecasts to Japan, Costa Rica, Mexico, Brazil, Colombia, Venezuela, Panama, Puerto Rico and Canada.

Quite simply, an NASL game wouldn't have attracted some 300 newsmen from all over the world to the miniature press box at Downing Stadium. It wouldn't have attracted 21,278 fans to the aged concrete structure where there are boards instead of seats and light towers that originally stood atop Ebbets Field.

Pro soccer just isn't that popular here, especially on a Father's Day when the New York Yankees were giving away baseball bats and there was horse racing at Belmont Park.

But they came; in buses, cars, on bicycles and some even on foot to see the Black Pearl show his stuff. And it wasn't even a league game; it was an exhibition.

Naturally, Pele held the spotlight. His goal and assist almost were expected by every fan in attendance — and even his new teammates on the New York Cosmos.

What good is a guarantee on the muffler when your tailpipe goes?

There's more to an exhaust system than a muffler. There's a tailpipe, exhaust pipe, clamps and hangers. And statistics tell us that the tailpipe often goes before the muffler.

Yet most of the people who repair exhaust systems only give a lifetime guarantee on their mufflers. If you have to buy a tailpipe and it goes, guess who pays? And you could pay as much as $35.

Yet with all this we charge about the same as places with less of a guarantee. So at Scotti you get off a lot cheaper in the long run.

We give you a 100% guarantee on 100% of our work.

Tex. ends drought in College Series

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The great Texas baseball drought is over.

The second-ranked Longhorns captured their third national crown Saturday night by topping South Carolina 5-1 in the College World Series as Richard Wortham pitched a masterful four-hitter.

But it was Texas' first title in the classic in 25 years.

"We felt that when Southern Cal didn't qualify for the tournament, that we would take it all," said Coach Cliff Gustafson, whose teams had three thirds and a fourth as Southern Cal was reeling off five successive titles from 1970 on.

Texas captured consecutive series crowns in 1949 and 1950 and qualified 15 times thereafter before finally winning another.

"The whole ballclub played well, like champions," said Gustafson, whose team was second-ranked most of the season and finished 56-6.

Only Southern Cal with 10 titles in the 29-year history of the tournament has more crowns than the Longhorns, and Gustafson might have them back again next year.

Wortham, fellow pitching ace Jim Gideon, who won two series games, plus five regulars were taken in the summer draft and may sign.

Wortham was the story of the title game.

"I didn't pitch that bad in my first series game, but I lost."

And the same could be said of his teammates, who put together three impressive victories after Wortham lost a 5-2 decision to Arizona State in the second round of the eight-team tournament.

In the title game witnessed by 10,717, South Carolina's only run came on a home run by Hank Small in the fourth. After that, Wortham seemed to sense victory.

He allowed only two singles and an walk and was aided by a couple of fine defensive plays and retired the final seven men in order. He finished the season 15-1.

Seay tops area track competitors

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Danny Seay of the University of Kansas led Kansas and Missouri performers in the Meet of Champions track show Saturday.

Seay won the long jump with a leap of 25 feet, 9 1/2 inches. Teammate Randy Smith finished second in the high jump with 7-0, and Kent McDonald of Kansas wound up fourth in the 3,000-meter steeplechase, an event won by Wichita State University's Randy Smith, who was clocked in eight minutes, 37.6 seconds. McDonald's time was 8:48.6.

Richard Wilson of Meremac Junior College in Missouri ran the 220 in 21.5, good for fourth place.

Four-run uprising tops Royals, 8-7

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Catcher Tim Blackwell of the Boston Red Sox admits he got the maximum out of the minimum Sunday.

It wasn't intended that way but Blackwell tapped one of Steve Mingori's pitches in front of the plate, the ball traveling only eight or 10 feet, and two runs scored, including the one that gave Boston an 8-7 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

The rather weird development came with two out in the eighth inning and capped a four-run uprising that broke a 4-4 tie and pinned reliever Lindy McDaniel with his first defeat after three victories.

"You've got to be lucky to get two runs off of something like that," Blackwell said. "It happens once in a while, and I'm glad it happened to me today."

Blackwell was safe on a close play at first. Royals first baseman John Mayberry turned toward the plate but there was nobody there to take the throw.

"I was looking over at first base," Mingori said sheepishly. "I should have covered the plate."

Like Mingori, Royals catcher Fran Healy also turned spectator.

Blackwell's unintentional tap first scored Rico Petrocelli and then Dwight Evans. Evans said he ran home "because they were all looking only at first base."

Hot-hitting Fred Lynn, who extended his hitting streak to 20 straight games, started the eighth-inning fireworks with a single off McDaniel. Jim Rice was walked intentionally. Petrocelli's single scored Lynn, and Evans' single drove in Rice.

The Royals, who once trailed 4-1, knocked Boston starter Bill Lee, 9-5, out of the game in the last of the eighth with two runs on singles by Frank White and Cookie Rojas. They added another in the ninth on Mayberry's sacrifice fly and left the tying run on third base.

Denny Doyle, called "that new boy" by the Red Sox, gave Boston a 3-0 advantage in the second by hitting his first home run of the season with Evans on base.

Doyle, acquired by Boston from the California Angels Friday, said he was "most definitely glad to be with the Red Sox. They're a good club, a nice bunch of guys, a good organization, and they've got a chance to win it all. I know I can help them."

The Royals, who scored a run in the third on Healy's double and Patek's single, knotted the score at 4-4 with a three-run outburst against Lee. Amos Otis got a double and scored on Mayberry's single. Petrocelli's throwing error and run-scoring singles by Frank White and Fred Patek produced the other runs in the inning.

The victory kept the leading Red Sox a full game ahead of the New York Yankees in the American League East. The Yankees also won, beating the Chicago White Sox 3-0.

Action in Pearson's pit

A member of David Pearson's pit crew steps quickly to get out of the way after one of Pearson's pit stops during Sunday's running of the Motor State 400 NASCAR race at Michigan International Speedway. Pearson grabbed the lead with 18 laps to go and fought off a challenge by Richard Petty to win the rain-delayed race. The event was delayed three and one-half hours due to repeated thunderstorms that swept the track.

Andretti beats Redman in Mosport, Ont. 5000

MOSPORT, Ont. (AP) — With reigning Formula 5000 champion Brian Redman riding his tail-pipes, Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., won the Canadian section of the continent-wide race series Sunday.

Andretti finished about six-tenths of a second ahead of the Englishman.

The duel between the two around 40 laps of Mosport's 5.5-mile road course was the most thrilling part of a speed weekend here and brought the former winner of the Indianapolis 500 more than $16,000 in prize money.

Redman, still leader in points after the first two races of the nine-race series, won $10,000 in cash. The 54 points his second place brought him gives him a total of 60 points. He won the championship in 1974.

Warwick Brown of Australia, who races out of California, took third place and $6,000 in cash. The top three drivers all drove Lolas, as did more than half the starting field of 18.

It was the first time a Formula 5000 race had been billed as a major event at a Canadian track and replaces the now-defunct Canadian-American Challenge Cup series for big-bore sports cars.

Formula 5000 cars are a combination of the sophisticated steering and suspension systems of European Grand Prix racers and North American engines.

The Formula 5000 racers make their next appearance at Watkins Glen, N.Y., July 13.

Carol Mann posts 34th LPGA tour golf victory

MEDINA, Ohio (AP) — Carol Mann, the voice of authority, says there's no substitute for experience when you lead a Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

"The first time I ever led, I shot 84 the next day," recalled the LPGA president moments after her 35th tour triumph Sunday in the $50,000 Medina Open.

Perhaps Miss Mann was showing compassion for luckless Jo Ann Washam, a winless third-year pro who shot 80 after leading the field Saturday. She finished five shots behind the winner.

Miss Mann, 34, relied on her savvy to master winds gusting to 40 miles per hour. She registered a two-over-par 74 for a 54-hole total of 217, one over par.

While Miss Mann posted a steady round of three birdies, one bogey and one double bogey, three young pros playing in the last threesome behind her failed to handle the blustery weather.

Besides Miss Washam, Kathy Postlewait slipped to an 80, and rookie Amy Alcott ballooned to 82.

Their demise opened the door for more veterans. Judy Rankin, the first-day leader with a 70, surged to second place with a closing 74 for 219. Sandra Palmer, this year's top money winner with more than $52,000, shot 72 for 220 and third place.

Then came all-time money earner Kathy Whitworth and Murre Breer at 221. Miss Whitworth had 74 and Mrs. Breer 75.

The wind led to the highest scores of the three days over the 6,050-yard course. No one broke par.

Utz wins third feature at Saline County track

(Democrat-Capital Service)

MARSHALL — Sedalia sprint car driver Bill Utz survived a flip in his heat race and went on to win his third feature in four tries at Saline County Speedway here Sunday night.

Utz and Jim Jenkins, Slater, tangled in the fourth turn and Utz flipped his No. 56 Chevy-powered sprinter. But the Sedalia restaurant owner came back in the feature after placing fourth in the heat to annex his third checker of the year.

George Lasoski, Dover, Mo., placed second in the feature, while Gary Scott, Columbia, was third.

Gene Dye, Auxvasse, Mo., won the late model feature event, finishing ahead of Albie Wilson, Miami, Mo., and Don Shelton of Excelsior Springs.

Super-sprint heat winners were Dave Dwyer, Columbia; Gene Gennetten, Gladstone, Mo.; and Lasoski. John Johnson, Independence, won the sprint consolation feature.

Pete Cruse, Marshall, and Wilson won the late model heats as nearly 1,000 fans looked on.

2nd straight French tennis title to Borg

PARIS (AP) — "It's not easy for someone like me to hate someone on a tennis court," said Sweden's 19-year-old Bjorn Borg.

"But that's what you've got to do if you are going to win. It is even worse if the man you are playing happens to be one of your best friends."

Borg got over the problem and hammered his close acquaintance, Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4 in the final of the French International Open Championships Sunday. It was the second straight year he had won the title, and it was worth $30,000 in prize money.

The one-sided victory ended speculation that Borg had been playing too much tennis and had lost some of his brilliance. He raced about the court at the Roland Garros Stadium like a deer and his forehand shots were as devastating as in the past.

It is only two years since Borg first burst upon the tennis world by reaching the quarterfinals in these championships, rated traditionally the top clay court event in the world.

Since then, he has won the French title twice, the Italian title once and reached the final of the World Championship Tennis Masters event in Dallas.

Borg's achievement here surpassed anything he had done previously. He swept past six opponents, including U.S. Davis Cup stars, dropping only one set and losing only 43 games.

Now he will go to England and practice on grass for a week in preparation for Wimbledon.

"I shall rest from tournament play for a week, and do a little practice," Borg said. "I enjoy playing at Wimbledon, but it will be difficult changing from clay to grass."

"Perhaps I have not given myself enough time."

Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., the defending women's champion, also retained her title, beating Martina Navratilova, the 19-year-old Czech left-hander, 2-6, 6-2, 6-1 Saturday.

Money is high on NCAA's list

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An effort to reduce operating costs of intercollegiate athletics will highlight a special convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association in Chicago Aug. 14 and 15.

The NCAA Council is sponsoring numerous proposed revisions in the NCAA constitution and bylaws, all designed to save money. Most of the proposals were discussed in April at the organization's special meeting on economy in athletics.

Recruiting, financial aid to athletes, travel squads and coaching staffs would be affected if the proposed new rules are approved by the convention delegates.

The proposals would outlaw scouting of opponents in person in all sports except basketball and in Division I would limit the number of football coaches to a head coach, seven assistant coaches and two part-time assistants. In basketball, the head coach could have only one assistant and one part-time assistant.

The exchange of films would still be permitted for scouting purposes in football.

Under the proposals, football coaches could not take their teams to nearby cities to spend the night prior to a home game or a game played in a nearby city. Also schools would have to limit awards to athletes to an insignia letter and a certificate.

Signing dates by conferences would be eliminated, and there would be only one national signing date.

Off-campus contacts of a prospective student-athlete would be limited to two. In football, those contacts would have to be made between Dec. 1 and the first Saturday in February and in basketball and hockey from Feb. 15 through the second Saturday in April. Athletes could sign with only one school.

Starting with the date the declaration form was mailed by the athlete and ending at midnight of the second Saturday thereafter, the school could not contact the athlete. This is referred to as "the quiet period."

Grants-in-aid in football would be decreased from the present limit of 105 to 90 with a maximum of 27 in any one year. In basketball, the maximum would be five instead of the present six with a total not to exceed 16 in 1976 and 15 in 1977.

All scholarships in all sports at a school could not total more than 185. At present, the total is 332.

Football travel squads would be limited to 48 and in basketball to 10. Basketball practice would begin Nov. 1 instead of Oct. 15 as at present.

Cardinal maneuvers create opening on St. Louis roster

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals were expected to add another player to their roster today after a pair of transactions Sunday night left them one short of the 25-man limit, a team spokesman said.

On the eve of the deadline for trading Sunday night, St. Louis placed two players on waivers and swapped players with their Tulsa farm club.

Placed on waivers for the purpose of giving them their unconditional release were outfielder Don Hahn and first baseman Danny Cater. At the same time, the Cardinals announced the promotion of first baseman Doug Howard from Tulsa.

The Red Birds later optioned the contract of outfielder Jim Dwyer to Tulsa in exchange for the contract of right-handed pitcher Mike Barlow.

Hahn, 26, batted .143 in five games with the Cardinals after being picked up last month as a free agent following his release by the Philadelphia Phillies. He played previously with the New York Mets.

Cater, 35, was obtained during spring training from the Boston Red Sox and was hitting .229 in 22 games.

At Tulsa, the 27-year-old Howard was hitting .336 with eight homers and 39 runs batted in.

Dwyer had appeared in 21 games as a pinch-hitter for the Cardinals and was hitting .194.

Barlow, 6-feet-6, started the season with Oakland's Tucson farm team where he was 4-1. He came to the Cardinals organization in May and was 1-0 at Tulsa.

Win gives Bolding inspirational lift

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — "This will give me some inspiration for next weekend," said world record holder Jim Bolding after an impressive victory at the Meet of Champions.

But two other world record holders, Pacific Coast Club teammates of Bolding, were among the also-rans Saturday at the new U.S. Track and Field Federation event. And discuss record holder John Powell, stuck in a traffic jam, didn't make it to the stadium in time to compete.

Shot putter Al Feuerbach and high jumper Dwight Stones were the world record holders who competed but failed to win. Feuerbach, splitting his time between the shot and weight lifting these days, threw 64 feet, 6 1/2 inches in finishing behind Sam Walker, while Stones' 7-foot jump left him in a large group behind former Indiana high jumper Dennis Adama who cleared 7-2.

Campaign hot for new land

SAIPAN (AP) — Strategically important land within bomber range of Southeast Asia will become United States territory if residents of the Marianas Islands vote Tuesday to become U.S. citizens.

If a least 55 per cent of the voters in the plebiscite approve, the Marianas will become a U.S. commonwealth, the first new territory acquired by the United States since 1925.

It will be the islanders' first chance to choose their own form of government after 300 years of domination by Spain, Germany, Japan and the United States.

Many observers here say voters will approve the commonwealth covenant, which would give the Marianas a relationship to the United States similar to Puerto Rico's.

But the campaign has been hot, with speeches on local radio and television and meetings even in outlying villages.

"If the United States only wants our islands for military purposes, my strong feeling is that we must raise our price sky high, because our lives are at stake," says Abel Olopai, a leading opponent of the covenant.

Backers of the covenant appeal for the votes of the 5,500 eligible persons with photographs contrasting the backwardness of thatched huts with the promise of prosperity represented by rush-hour traffic on Saipan's two-lane main road.

Under the covenant the United States would pay $19.5 million for a 100-year lease on about 18,000 acres, most of that on Tinian Island, where the military has talked of building a $300 million base. The United States would provide $14 million a year in direct aid for seven years, and the Marianas could participate in some federal grant programs.

Islanders would elect their own governor and legislature to deal with local affairs.

Commonwealth status would separate the 16 Marianas islands from the rest of the U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific — 2,100 islands with a total land area smaller than Rhode Island's dotted over three million square miles of ocean. Since 1947, when the United Nations declared it a strategic trusteeship, the United States has governed the territory through a high commissioner appointed by the President.

Many Americans remember the Marianas as the scene of some of the bloodiest fighting of World War II. Wreckage from the battle for Saipan is still strewn along sparkling beaches and across densely overgrown landscape.

Today Saipan, the Trust Territory capital, is the most developed of the territory's islands. There are paved roads, busy shops, a growing Japanese tourist trade. A luxury hotel recently opened and two more are under construction. By the end of summer a new airport is expected to be ready to handle wide-bodied jetliners.

Yet Saipan's telephone book is just 12 pages of large type. A dog can snooze safely on almost any street and many of the 11,000 residents live in rundown shacks.

The 300-mile-long chain of islands are three hours from Japan or the Philippines by jet and within 3,000 miles of all of Southeast Asia.

Except for sun and beaches, there are few natural resources.

Military observers say that

Tinian would become vital if the United States expanded its military presence beyond what can be handled on Guam, a U.S. territory 100 miles south of Saipan. The small island already has a nuclear submarine base, a ship repair yard and a Strategic Air Command base with a B52 bomber wing.

If the voters reject the covenant, the Marianas could propose a revised covenant or rejoin the rest of the Trust Territory, which leans toward looser ties with the United States, or even independence.

Internal problems halt legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House and the Senate are attempting to resolve some personnel problems before turning to legislation this week.

In the Senate, the question is what to do about the disputed Senate election in New Hampshire last Nov. 5 where both Republican Louis C. Wyman and Democrat John A. Durkin claim victory.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said over the weekend that he hoped the Senate would complete its work on the New Hampshire election dispute by June 28 when Congress begins its July 4th recess.

A vote in the Senate is scheduled for late Tuesday afternoon on whether to send the issue back to New Hampshire for another election, a move supported by the Republican minority.

In the House, Reps. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., and Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., say a resolution to abolish the embattled intelligence committee may be introduced when the full House takes up Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi's resignation as committee chairman. Some senior House members want to get rid of the panel because they feel it has been taken over by men who are a threat to U.S. intelligence agencies.

"You've got a problem of what seems to me to be cannibalism," said Bolling. "The cannibals, having eaten the king, become king."

Sen. Robert B. Morgan, D-N.C., a member of the Senate panel probing the CIA, recommended that the House cease its investigation because of the possibility that more secret information would be exposed.

Morgan, referring to what he said was spying by Soviet agents, also asserted that "we know as a fact that they (Soviet agents) are wiretapping the telephones of ... some senators in Washington now."

Nedzi, pressured by five other Democrats on the House committee, resigned in the wake of criticism that he had known about CIA misdeeds for more than a year but did nothing about them.

Nedzi, a Democrat from Michigan, has contended that the misdeeds were history and that he was concerned with current problems.

House members also hope to wind up action on an energy tax bill which was stripped last week of tough provisions against gas-guzzling automobiles and of proposed gasoline tax hikes.

Mansfield said President Ford's tariff on oil imports, plus a price increase that petroleum exporters are expected to impose in September, could raise domestic gasoline prices to about $1 a gallon, unless "something isn't done by the Congress and the President together."

AMA has problems

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Delegates to the American Medical Association's annual convention face three major problems this week: malpractice insurance, inadequate membership and a financial crisis.

The AMA's money squeeze has become so tight it has attempted to cut costs by such devices as rationing the use of color illustrations in its publications and by buying lighter weight paper.

The AMA lost $3.5 million in 1974 and faces a $2.6-million deficit for 1975. The leaders are asking the delegates to raise dues from $110 to $250.

A special assessment of $60 per member, approved last November, has produced nearly $7.2 million so far. The money has been used to pay off $3 million which was borrowed to cover losses for 1974, to cover the anticipated 1975 deficit and to finance unbudgeted court challenges to government regulations.

The proposed dues increase would cover current activities, restore some programs that were dropped and allow new programs at $2 million a year for the next few years, the board of trustees told the delegates Sunday.

"This has been a year of anguish for all of us," said Dr. James H. Sammons, executive vice president, in his report to the 124th AMA convention which opened Sunday.

A key to strengthening the organization, Sammons said, is to increase membership.

Loser of a flag

Milwaukee flagmaker Mel Shikora says the groundswell of patriotism for the national bicentennial is making this a banner year for his business, except for the hundreds of WIN flags he got stuck with. But now he says he's going to sell them to high school sports teams for inspiration.

Tape mars finish on beautiful door

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with restaurants that do not think babies and small children deserve clean high chair trays. In many different places I have had to ask the waitress to wipe off the tray before I would even put my child in the chair. — LINDA.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell the readers how I solved the dirty clothes storage problem. A hamper in the bathroom catches the towels, sheets, washcloths and such things that are washed together. The rest of the laundry is divided in separate hampers so no sorting is needed. Each family member knows knits and shirts go in the gold hamper, jeans and colored socks in the orange one, my husband's work clothes in the green hamper and dainty things like lingerie in the white hamper. Sorting is done for me. Such hampers can be placed wherever is most convenient for each homemaker. The hampers will have to be labeled for a while until everyone is used to the idea. If one does not want the expense of buying new hampers plastic clothes baskets in different colors could be used. — JOETTA.

DEAR POLLY — When a group of us were learning to embroider, our resourceful teacher made embroidery hoops from the rather heavy plastic containers that whipped topping comes in. She cut the center out of a plastic lid leaving about a 3/4 inch rim. The inner part of the hoop was made by cutting the top off the rim of the container so it was about 1/2 inch deep. Fabric to be embroidered is firmly held between these two hoops and they are nice and light to hold. — EUNICE.

DEAR POLLY — Try removing those scuff marks from light colored (beige, white, etc.) shoes with an ordinary sponge eraser. I was amazed at the results when I first tried it and even think it shines them up a bit. — ELAINE.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I made the tragic mistake of fastening cards on a mahogany-stained, varnished door with cellophane tape. I removed all the tape but marks still remain. I certainly would like to correct this without having to paint over these beautiful doors. — ANNIE.

DEAR ANNIE — Since no tape remains you might try the following remedy that removes many spots from varnished wood. Rub camphorated oil on, following the grain of the wood, and then immediately rub off it with a dry cloth. For more severe damage you might rub GENTLY the area with a dry steel wool soap pad. This is painstaking work. Do only a little at a time and remove the powdery dust. Then go on to the next place. When spots are removed polish like the rest of the door.

Or, it may be that your marks could be removed by the use of a stain remover furniture polish just rubbed into the stains and then blended out into the rest of the door. I have sometimes darkened spots on dark varnished floors with a cotton-tipped stick dipped in iodine and rubbed the iodine off immediately after removing any that extended beyond the spots. Good luck! — POLLY.

Tapestry depicts American life

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Not everything in home furnishing will be coming up red, white and blue with liberty bell motif for the bicentennial. Two artistic women, Helen Webber and Annie Bohlin, have designed a couple of dozen handsome floor and wall rugs to get over a different kind of American message.

"My main goal is to communicate with the outside world. The whole tapestry (wall rug) medium is something that reaches people. It is sensual, tactile, warm, whereas the public environment is stone, cement, steel," said Mrs. Webber of San Francisco, who received her master's degree in art from the Rhode Island School of Design.

A sensitive woman, mother of three teen-agers, she also writes and illustrates children's books and "is into the whole woven textured fabric thing" as well as ceramics, mosaics and silk screen. Her wall rugs incorporate poetry, lovers, women, rivers and a fantasy forest into a lively collection of three-dimensional art in vivid colors.

The lyrical interpretations of American life include a Colonial farm girl with bird and guitar, young lovers under a spreading tree, a tranquil nude, a "morning kiss" — a boy and a girl under a rising sun. Another rug is an American fantasy — zoo-like forest with a sleeping beauty, animals and birds, all "poetic designs," in 29 colors. Another piece with youthful heads and expressions of poetry is "in letters shaped graphically."

"She takes a line of poetry and melds it into a work of art. Like music and lyrics, it is hard to tell which comes first, the line of poetry or the design," commented Edward Fields, who commissioned both women to do the current collection, and who executed the rugs in wool. Mrs. Webber submits a collage to him after she gets the idea, he said.

Annie Bohlin, 34, met Fields at Kidderminster, England, 10 years ago when she was an exchange student worker on carpets while Fields was studying looms, and she has been designing rugs through the years. He has produced them in the special dimensional techniques.

To design her current salute to the bicentennial she began a year ago by reading everything she could about old quilts and visiting museums, including the nation's oldest, the Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford.

"There I sort of got a feeling of what old quilts were all about," she said in explaining one stylized patchwork rug design. "Threading through it, too, may be my own background with the Amish in Northern Indiana."

A kaleidoscope of patchwork in 12 colors, each panel has an individuality. She has also done simple designs, a Navajo rug, a handsome tree in a sunburst of colorful foliage in reds, orange, brown, a Pennsylvania countryside — her inspiration often comes from "obvious things" like her own backyard in Wilkes-Barre, Pa. where she lives with her husband and two children.

"When I think of early design I really think Indian," she explained. "A number of rugs in this collection resemble Navajo blankets and other Indian covers. I like unexplored old Indian motifs found on the old baskets, beading and the like. Some are really unbelievable."

She uses close values to get shimmering color, she says. One handsome rug — apricot, pink, red, yellow, orange, white and green on a dark background — is an impression of a moonlit Colonial garden.

In 1962, winning both Fulbright and Tiffany scholarships for textiles, she studied in Finland "where designers, unlike American designers, do not need to mass produce in order to prove themselves."

But she "wasn't particularly welcome," she says. She had arrived at the school too early, and she finally managed to set up a rented room in a rented room where she worked on her own.

"The language barrier was a big problem," she explained. "I exhibited some ideas I had gotten from old Finnish textiles and mythology when they had a show but the Finnish press did not write a word about it, and I found out later they just didn't understand it."

Big burger buns include healthful ingredients

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

For some time now a number of doctors in England and the United States have been suggesting that we would do well to make sure that fiber-rich foods are included in our meals as protection against a number of diseases. These physicians believe that present-day diets have been so high in refined cereals and flour that many of us need to increase our consumption of fiber-rich foods (and eat less sugar) to maintain good health.

At the mention of fiber-rich foods you probably think, as I did, of fruits and vegetables.

Interestingly enough, two of the foods highest in fiber are whole bran cereal and sesame seeds. Here then is a recipe for Big Burger Buns that includes whole wheat flour, bran cereal and sesame seeds. When we sandwiched these buns with hamburgers and served them as supper fare with a tossed salad, our tasters found them so filling that they were satisfied with a light fruit dessert.

BIG BURGER BUNS

2 cups (about) white flour
1 1/2 cups whole wheat flour
1/2 cup whole bran cereal
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 packages active dry yeast
1 cup water

1/2 cup milk
2 tablespoons molasses
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 egg white slightly beaten with 1 tablespoon cold water
Sesame seeds

Stir together 2 cups white flour and the whole wheat flour. In large bowl of electric mixer thoroughly stir together 1 cup of this flour mixture, the bran, sugar, salt and undissolved yeast.

In a small saucepan over low heat, heat together the water, milk, molasses and butter until very warm (120 to 130 degrees); butter does not need to melt. Gradually stir into dry ingredients in mixer bowl; beat at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl several times, for 2 minutes. Add 1/2 cup of the flour mixture; beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl a few times. Stir in the remaining flour mixture to make a soft dough; if more flour is necessary, add white flour. Turn out onto a lightly floured surface; knead until smooth and elastic — 8 to 10 minutes; dough may be sticky. Place in a greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover with plastic wrap or a clean tea towel; let rise in a warm, draft-free place until doubled — about 50 minutes.

Punch down dough; divide in half. On a lightly floured board or prepared pastry cloth, with a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out half the dough to about 1/4-inch thickness; with a 4-inch round cutter, cut out; re-roll and cut out dough scraps. Place well apart on a greased cookie sheet. Treat other half of dough the same way. Cover as previously; let rise in a warm draft-free place until doubled — about 45 minutes. Gently brush buns with egg white mixture; sprinkle generously with sesame seed. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven about 15 minutes. Remove to wire racks to cool. Makes about 12.
